I have memories as a child of a lovely woman with the biggest, warmest hugs that always welcomed us back to Cleveland. She was the one we gravitated to when we went to church - she was the one with the candy in her purse. She always made me feel like I belonged to her. My best memory though is when she met my boys. They instantly belonged to her too. She won them over with quarters for gumballs. And she became the only babushka they ever knew.
