This is truly an incredible shock. I was just looking up certain people from my past, mostly teenage years. I cannot believe that he is no longer on this earth. I didn't know him as well as others but he was a brief part of my life. Bless your soul and those lives you were a part of. Skateland was where I will remember you. ❤️

I have so many memories of Jay 💜. Hanging out at Skateland, The duck pond, Driving around in His old Green car, The Arcade playing pool, parking at Napa Auto parts setting off their silent alarm and cops showing up lol, but mostly hearing him sing, play guitar and us talking about life. He was one of only a few souls who understood me in a deep level and I him. My life was enriched because he was in it and my heart will always have a place for him. I miss his smile and laugh so much. I can't wait till we meet agsin someday Jay, but till then I'll settle for seeing you in my dreams. Prayers go out for his family during this time 🍷❤️.

Jay always had an open home and heart for everyone. My love to Deanna and Jay's family at this time and after. Loss is hard and sucks really bad. I imagine the party just got started when he rolled in and he'll keep it going until we all get there.

Jason was my amazing nephew. I loved seeing Jason he always had a smile on his face and a mischievous glint in his eye. I will never forget a moment when he said "you know I can now throw you into the air" And proceeded to do so. I still laugh thinking about that moment. He brought joy everywhere he went.

Circa 1990-1ish....Jay and I had a conversation on the patio of my parents house in parma. We weren't "friends" just acquaintances. Our conversation was about how well we read people. It lasted hours! We talked about every person we mutually knew and how we read them.... then we read each other. No lie, creepy spot on on both sides. He read me dead nuts on, I read him dead nuts on. I have never and will never share the details of that conversation with anyone. We always had a special respect for one another after that. He will definitely be missed...🕯️🕯️🕯️ I truly sorry to hear of his passing and hope his Gerry and Deanna are comforted in the fact that he's in a better place waiting for them
